

November, 2011

Searching for Humanity: Veterans, Victims and Survivors of World War II is a unique and moving exhibit that asks its audience to consider the search for humanity during the Holocaust and to reflect on man's obligation to humankind. Nationally-known artist, Matthew Placzek, sets an affecting environment with photos, memorabilia, and testimony of Nebraska Holocaust survivors, soldiers, and those whose courageous actions liberated prisoners from concentration camps in Nazi-occupied Europe. Upon entering the exhibit, an emotional journey unfolds for visitors as the images chronicle remarkable personal experiences of confronting one of the most inhumane periods in our world's history.

This exhibit will remain at the Strategic Air and Space Museum through June 2014. Educational programming to use in conjunction with the exhibit will be announced soon. For more information regarding exhibit availability, please contact the Strategic Air and Space Museum at 402.944.3100. For information about educational initiatives and tours, please contact the IHE at info@ihene.org.

